the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has increased from 600 million to 800 million.

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is the rapid population growth in the developing countries.

Another reason is the increasing demand for food and other resources, which is putting pressure on the environment.

Finally, the increasing inequality in the distribution of resources is also a major factor.

These factors are all contributing to the increasing number of people who are undernourished.

It is therefore essential that we find ways to address these issues and ensure that everyone has access to sufficient food and resources.

One of the ways to do this is to improve agricultural productivity and efficiency.

Another way is to improve the distribution of resources and reduce inequality.

Finally, it is also important to address the environmental issues that are contributing to the problem.

By taking these steps, we can help to ensure that everyone has access to sufficient food and resources.

This is a goal that we should all strive to achieve.

It is our responsibility to ensure that everyone has access to sufficient food and resources.

By working together, we can make a difference and ensure that everyone has access to sufficient food and resources.
