Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Valerie Gregorio. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,

Valerie Gregorio

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Emily Bodden. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,

Emily Bodden

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Samuel Finke. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,
Sam

Dear Council Members,

My name is Christina Lim and I live in District 7. I am writing to you to discuss the budget for FY2021.

While we are in the middle of a global pandemic that has disproportionately affected Black communities in the U.S., police have also disproportionately brutalized and murdered Black people. With the murders of Sean Reed, Breonna Taylor, George Floyd, Tony McDade, David McAtee, and so many others, we cannot continue to turn a blind eye to the systemic racism and other flaws within the current policing structure. Public outcry against police brutality has been consistently loud, especially these past few weeks.

In light of the tragedies of every person we have lost to police brutality, I am writing to urge you to please reconsider increasing the budget of the Baltimore Police Department for FY2021. Rather than increasing the police budget, would you consider investing more in social services, education programs, community outreach, and affordable housing policies? If you, the Council members were to reallocate funding to invest in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health, you would be showing the residents of Baltimore that you are committed to communities and share a vision that all Baltimore residents deserve to thrive.

I am writing to urge you to listen to Baltimore's residents, think critically about their needs, and come up with a budget that reflects each and every citizen's voice and needs.

Sincerely,

Christina Lim

Hello Representative,

My name is June Kim. I am not a Baltimore resident; however, I have several loved ones living in Baltimore and I frequent the city. In recent weeks there has been an explosion of news and happenings surrounding the death of two unarmed Black civilians across the nation by police hands, as well as discussions surrounding the culture of police brutality in America. This had led me to find out that there has been a proposition to increase the Baltimore Police Department to $545,000,000 in the next fiscal year. I am writing this message in hopes that you may provide liaison to the concerns and needs of residents of Baltimore and myself in the upcoming BBMR budget hearings for FY 2021. Despite the need to provide protection services to a population of almost six hundred thousand people, I strongly urge that the increase in the BPD budget, as well as a substantial portion of its remaining budget, be reallocated toward social services and education. Historically, the city police budget has been vastly greater than the budgets allocated for public health, homeless services, youth services, and other vital agencies. Agencies that have the tools to fix problems that armed police forces do not. The city's high investment in policing does not address the root causes of crime and becomes a human rights liability when police disproportionately target nonwhite residents compared to their white counterparts. The city of Baltimore and its representatives need to invest in its people, to invest in bettering the human condition of its residents in order to thwart crime and violence, to invest in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, and the Department of Health. It is not the time to increase the senseless and ineffective might of force. It is the time to protect investments in human services, the social safety net, and racial economic justice. I ask that city officials give intense care, attention, and effort towards sustainable, long-term change.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
June Kim

Hello Representative,

My name is Joseph Tempestilli. I am not a Baltimore resident however i have been commuting to and working in the city for the last year. In recent weeks there has been an explosion of news and happenings surrounding the death of two unarmed black civilians across the nation by police hands, as well as discussions surrounding the culture of police brutality in America. This had led me to find out that there has been a proposition to increase the Baltimore Police Department to $545,000,000 in the next fiscal year. I am writing this message in hopes that you may provide liaison to the concerns and needs of residents of Baltimore and myself in the upcoming BBMR budget hearings for FY 2021. Despite the need to provide protection services to a population of almost six hundred thousand people, i strongly urge that the increase in the BPD budget, as well as a substantial portion of its remaining budget, be reallocated toward social services and education. Historically, the city police budget has been vastly greater than the budgets allocated for public health, homeless services, youth services, and other vital agencies. Agencies that have the tools to fix problems that armed police forces do not. The city's high investment in policing does not address the root causes of crime and becomes a human rights liability when police disproportionately target nonwhite residents compared to their white counterparts. The city of Baltimore and its representatives need to invest in its people, to invest in bettering the human condition of its residents in order to thwart crime and violence, to invest in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, and the Department of Health. It is not the time to increase the senseless and ineffective might of force. It is the time to protect investments in human services, the social safety net, and racial economic justice. I ask that city officials give intense care, attention, and effort towards sustainable, long-term change.

Thank you for your time,
Sincerely,
Joseph Tempestilli

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Amelia Haas. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,

Amelia Haas

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Killian McGinnis, and I am a lifetime resident of Baltimore writing to express concern at the proposed increase in police funding to the budget. Given the disgusting repression BPD showed against protestors last Monday, and in the midst of public calls to defund the police in cities across the country, it is appalling to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget.

BPD is a historically corrupt institution that, in addition to the murder of Freddie Gray and others, continues to cover up their brutal shooting and persecution of Keith Davis, Jr.

Police do not keep us safe. They traumatize Black and immigrant communities. I am urgently calling on you defund the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in grassroots community programs, as well as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, and the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Sincerely,

Killian McGinnis

To all concerned:

After years of using a 'tough on crime' strategy in Baltimore, its time for Baltimore to reevaluate its priorities. With the budget realities of post-COVID Baltimore, and the disgusting display that police across the country have displayed in the wake of the killing of George Floyd and Breonna Taylor, its time to look at our budget priorities.

We cannot keep using the line that the police department is a state agency, and that we do not have control. We control the $509 million that is given to the department, as well as the IT and facilities support they get from other parts of the budget. Every year we keep doing the same thing, it is another year that we traumatize residents of Baltimore. We cannot say that we are a trauma-responsive city when we are still causing the trauma. That's called gaslighting.

The liabilities are endless. The obvious ones are the mounting long term liabilities because of the pension costs we are accumulating, including the $150.5 million from this year. The less tangible ones are the abuses we are inflicting on our residents, actively through the abuses of the police, and passively by the lack of investment in truly supporting our residents.

It is unacceptable to look at the abuses of the Gun Trace Task Force, chalk them up to a 'few bad apples', and give the police more money.

Since 2010, we have spent $4.74 billion in city funds on the Baltimore Police Department. This model is not working. Cut the BPD's budget so we can start a discussion about where we can allocate that money. Rolling the budget back to 2014 levels would give us another $100 million to use, and would allow us to spend the next year discussing how we can disband the BPD.

Thank you,

Brian Seel

I am clinical social worker that works with formerly homeless women and families. If ever there is a situation where one might think the police "should" be called, my clients and I do everything we can to find another solution. We know the situation can turn on them with one expression of exasperation or frustration. Most of my clients have significant histories of trauma, the chances of them being triggered by aggressive, bullying behavior/body language often exhibited by police high. Baltimore does not have a crime problem, it has a intergenerational trauma problem. Trauma is not fixed by force but by safety and compassion (and mental health treatments like EMDR and Neurofeedback). I make less than $30/hr working for a non-profit. Like teachers buying books and supplies for their classrooms, I spend thousands of dollars each year trying to get the training and tools I need to help my clients. Their needs are great and the right treatments require resources beyond a talk therapist helping them to "make better choices." The costs of not treating them are greater—addiction, homelessness, child abuse, domestic violence —trauma begets trauma. The police only exacerbate these problems. Defund the police and put more money into health health care, child care, housing, job training. Invest money in mental health resources and care only available to the wealthy (quality inpatient mental health care for women and their children, Neurofeedback, clinician trainings in modalities effective for treating Complex-PTSD such as Internal Family Systems (IFS) Therapy, Somatic Experiencing, Brainspotting, and EMDR. Hi Marguerite,

I'm a Baltimore resident and firmly believe that reducing BPD funding would be a positive first step in the right direction, even if it's too late to reallocate the money. I fear that "reform" without reduced funding would be meaningless, as it fails to address an underlying, long-term problem of the police department and police unions holding too much power and having too much say in the political processes of the city. If BPD's funding and influence isn't reduced, they'll find a way — in the long term — to undo any short-term improvements that might be made. Please make an effort to reduce BPD funding for FY21.

Thank you,

Benjamin (Jerry) Donabedian

Dear Council President Brandon M. Scott, Councilperson Sneed, and Marguerite Currin,

I call on the Baltimore City Council to vote against the proposed FY 2020-21 Baltimore Police Department budget and instead work to implement significant and permanent reductions to this department. These funds should be routed toward the development and strengthening of our communities.

The proposed BPD FY21 Budget is $549,959,519. This is an increase of $13,583,042 compared to FY20. The budget also calls for cuts to several departments that better serve the public, including:

Affordable Housing (-$3,535,819)

Housing and Community Development (-$227,023)

Homeless Prevention and Support Services for the Homeless (-$641,270)

Outreach to the homeless (-$1,971,541)

Enoch Pratt Free Library (-$350,000)

Youth and Trauma Services (-$10,749)

Board of Elections (-$190,470)

Environmental Inspection Services (-$50,243)

Chronic Disease Prevention (-$252,906)

Park programs and events (-$122,912)

Public right of way cleaning (-$686,806)

Events Art Culture and Films (-$442,488)

I call on the City Council to cancel the BPD budget increase of $13.5 million and allocate it to the above departments. Give money to these organizations will build a better community.

Sincerely,
Katharine Mundy

Good evening,

I am writing to express discontent with the current proposed Baltimore City FY21 budget, specifically the increase in spending for the Baltimore City Police Department. The proposed increase of $13,583,042 could be money put to better use funding Youth and Trauma Services, Housing and Community Development Initiatives, Chronic Disease Prevention, Environmental Inspection Services, and Homelessness Prevention and Support Services for Baltimore residents.

As a social worker and resident of Baltimore City I am convinced that the answers to our challenges with crime and poverty lie in the availability of social welfare programs and services, not with increased police presence that criminalizes the most marginalized of our city residents. Our tax dollars should be spent on services that uplift our neighbors, improve the overall quality of life, and address root causes of crime. Pouring more money into a budget of already over a half a billion dollars is not the answer. Baltimore residents know that the answers do not lie within policing. Put our budget to better use.

Best,
Emma Thomas
Resident of 7th District

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Daniela C. Rodriguez. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Armaan Sajid. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,
Armaan Sajid

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Jason Siegel. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,
Jason Siegel

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Sahil Patel. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021. Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,
Sahil Patel

Dear Mayor Young,

My name is Sophia Obrebski. In the midst of a pandemic and public outcry against police brutality, it is inappropriate to propose increases to the Baltimore Police Department budget. I urge you to reallocate the Baltimore City Expense Budget, divest interest in the BPD, and invest in social services and education programs, effective for FY 2021.

Investment in programs such as the Affordable Housing Trust Fund, Baltimore Children and Youth Fund, Safe Streets Baltimore, the Office of Employment and Development, or the Department of Health will have a measurable and lasting impact on public health and safety.

Best,
Sophia Obrebski
