Recitals

Information provided by the Department of Housing and Community Development shows that there are nearly 30,000 abandoned properties in Baltimore City. The City currently owns nearly 10,000 vacant properties, ? of all vacant property in the City. Approximately 4,000 City-owned vacant properties are vacant structures.

Vacant Property Security (VPS) is a worldwide leader in the protection and management of vacant properties, and it aims to build an integrated property services group focused on the temporary protection, improvement, and renovation of those properties. The company provides a unique security system of heavy gauge, perforated steel window screens and steel doors.

The VPS solution to vacant property security consists of:

- Attractively-designed, modular steel-plated doors
- Steel window screens that permit outside light and ventilation flow-through for contractors and prospective buyers
- Adjustable steel sheeting for doors and windows
- Cleaning and maintenance for the inside and outside of the property.

As stated by Housing officials, “abandoned properties drain money from innocent homeowners, cost the City money, and reduce the quality of life in affected neighborhoods.” VPS currently successfully provides services for single family, multi-family, and commercial properties in over 16 urban areas, including Chicago, Los Angeles, New York City, Philadelphia, Atlanta, and Washington D.C., and here in Baltimore it should be considered as a possible solution to the relentless problem of vacant housing that exists for Baltimore City government.
